

ABSTRACT

An event service system includes an administrative framework utilizing CORBA interfaces, an administrative system interface coupled to the administrative framework, and at least one language-specific interface coupled to the administrative system interface and configured to provide a mechanism for communication between the administrative system interface and a customer administration application. The administrative system interface is configured to enable clients to manage the event service system. The administrative framework includes a system administrative subsystem, a data management subsystem, and an event service framework.